Leahy's Plans For Campus Renovations Following Redefinition Of Professional Degree

FULTON HALL — Amidst the revision to what is classified as a "professional degree," the Leahy Administration has taken it upon itself to renovate the school to adhere to this new standard. Following suit from the Oval Office, Leahy executed a series of executive acts to keep Boston College in line with what President Trump and his administration dictate.

To begin, Maloney Hall's two floors, out of the five total, dedicated to the Connell School of Nursing, are to be demolished and turned into an extension of Fulton Hall. Leahy was quoted as saying that "two out of the five floors is far too many for a degree no longer considered professional. These floors need to be allocated to other majors with more life-changing impacts, like finance."

Leahy's head of reconstruction, Richard "Dick" Ryder, supplied the Classic with an interview, saying that "expanding the business school is the perfect way to improve our liberal arts education and get more donations at our nonprofit university," said Ryder. However, during the reconstruction, Ryder and his team unfortunately mixed up Maloney Hall for McGuinn. Nevertheless, Leahy promised students that this mistake would not be in vain, issuing a new executive order that would remodel two floors of McGuinn into a field office for Deloitte, JP Morgan, and Goldman Sachs. "Honestly, I'm glad we accidentally took out McGuinn. I was told it's the 'School of Social Work.' What do they even do?" said Ryder.

Next, Leahy planned on converting all local elementary school classrooms into more classrooms for CSOM majors. Leahy pointed to the excess of classroom buildings for non-CSOM majors in his order and believes that "more learning spaces for CSOM students will increase their productivity."

Further, Ryder spoke about his personal connection to the plans for the remodeling of the local classrooms, saying, "Have you ever noticed how the word is teac-HER and not teac-HIM? That's not very inclusive." Ryder, a college dropout, continued, saying, "I think the reasonable next step would be to expel all of the nursing students and replace them with students who will actually help people in the future, marketing majors."

Boston College Football Team Unable To Achieve Their Primary Season Goal: Winning The Intramural Mug

SWEATY PLEX LOCKER ROOM — Despite the millions of dollars in funding, nationwide recruiting efforts, the draining of the Res, the New Balance deal, and even having to ditch that one friend who way over did it at the tailgates, Boston College Football finished this historically terrible season with a 2-10 record. The Eagles have managed to let you down, your hometown friends down, Baldwin down, and every parent who has to stomach paying their child's tuition, down.

To add insult to devastating injury, the Athletics Department confirmed that BC Football remains the only team on campus that has not won an intramural mug. Most followers of the team had resigned any expectations months ago during their abominable start to the season. Nonetheless, Coach Bill O'Brien was quick to dispel the bad vibes. The Classic obtained an exclusive, behind-the-scenes-peek at the post-loss speech given by Billy.

"Alright, guys. I'm not down, nobody's down. We're fighting, we're competing. But that mug is gonna have to wait until next year. No one wants that mug as much as me, but it takes a long time to develop a program. I don't know if you guys know that, but it takes a long time. Keep your heads up, boys, Eagles on three."

The speech didn't have the effect Bill O'Brien expected. Instead of the hoo-rahs you'd expect from a group of concussed adults going to school for free, the student "athletes" started packing their bags.

"It's not fair," said Dylan Lonergan (MCAS '26) quarterback of the Boston College football team and former ninth-seed quarterback of the Crimson Tide "Some people are taking this way too seriously." Dylan managed an impressive two seasons in Alabama, passing a cumulative 35 yards, until he couldn't take the accent anymore, and hasn't gotten much more than that since landing at the Heights.

In an email sent to the BC community, the Athletics Department announced a $50 million challenge gift to improve the program's chance at securing an intramural mug. Sources confirm the mug itself costs $12.99 to produce, raising questions about where the remaining $49,999,987 will go.

Uh Oh! Father Leahy's Search History Raises More Questions Than Answers

FR. LEAHY'S PHONE — We finally cracked the code. After many long nights, our brave operatives at the Classic gained full access to none other than Fr. William P. Leahy, S.J.'s phone. While we were slightly disappointed his top search was not, "how to divest from the fossil fuel industry and actually do something good for the students before retirement," the results were still worth sharing.

horoscopes

Aries: You are about to get an Instagram dm from an account called @oldie-lookinforsexies telling you that you are gorgeous! When he asks you to meet him at the Downtown Crossing Red Line stop for a photoshoot, do it! Any connection offers a new direction.

Taurus: A plastic bag of tzatziki awaits you. This is an opportunity, don't waste it. Stick your hand into her and start tastin. No, it's not socially off-putting!

Gemini: Oh Gemini, but no one has ever written a song about you. You aren't Emma Chamberlain! Actually, you're completely irrelevant! Visualizing a major rebranding in your near future, or nasty identity fraud…either way a win is a win!

Cancer: Hey babe. You should probably stop listening to sombr. It is not conducive to your success. Like at all.

Leo: I called up my oracle: Grumble Grumble Grumble, An ego you shall fumble, A scooter soon shall hit you, And me oh my you'll take a nastyyyy tumble…

Virgo: Ugh babycakes…the man who asked you for lulu recs at hot yoga was not trying to connect romantically. He's not just really secure in his masculinity; he's violently gay! Touch some grass, shake dat ass, this too shall pass.

Libra: That wellness journey you've been on is going to take a devious turn when you accept the retreat you felt mind and body "called" to from Craigslist. That pit in your stomach is your fight or flight response, not your body "releasing what no longer serves it." Stop being fucking indecisive and run.

Scorpio: LOL you're on fire right now. No like actually, you are literally on fucking fire. Find the nearest source of water ASAP as possible

Sagittarius: This weekend, your fake ID will get taken. She is peeling my love, and you are not a 45 year old 6 foot 7 Nigerian man. It will happen, and it will happen at the bar you love most and you will feel betrayed.

Capricorn: You will fall victim to investment banking. Remember, other stressors exist besides corporate America. No, your monitors do not qualify as emotional support animals. Get a grip, and for the love of God stop going live on Linkedin.

Aquarius: Boi, cut the Jeff Buckley and mix in a water. Your campus crush does not know who you are, and serenading her outside Kostka does not constitute a first date.

Pisces: Two things! Number one, you should definitely work on taking more shrooms. A biweekly basis would be ideal #babysteps. Number two, you should probably stop speaking in tongues, nobody gafs.

Dave's (6'4) Dating Advice

What's up chuds. You know what time it is. Let's get you some bitches.

Q: Dear Dave,

(M23, MCAS) I'm trying to find the perfect song to put on my Instagram story for femoid attention.

A: Dear Dude,

Lowk just like Bad Bunny maybe, girls loved that one Calvin Klein ad.

Q: Dear Dave,

(M21, MCAS) I've been struggling to make a connection with any females on campus. It's hard to find anyone who truly wants to find love and has the best intentions in mind. Am I doing something wrong?

A: Dear Chopped,

Are you mad ugly or something lmao? Nah just playing but fr, lock tf in. Try Hinge, lots of emotionally dependent females there. Could also pretend you like Clairo, girls fuckin love when a guy listens to terrible music, and they can't even tell if you really mean it or not either.

Q: Dear Dave,

My (M22, CSOM) girlfriend (F18, CSON) wants to take things slow after she just broke up with her high school sweetheart. How do I fix this?

A: Dear Virgin,

She probably just hasn't felt enough pressure yet. Tell her you'll kys if you don't have sex.

Q: Dear Dave,

(M24, LAW) What's the best way to find hot freshmen on campus?

A: Dear Unc,

I'm ngl, I don't know if I can help you with that fam. Seems kinda fucked up that someone so old would be looking for girls who just got out of high school basically. Not really something I fw, but everyone knows Kostka lounge is where it's at.

MASCOT SHIP QUIZ RESULTS:

MOSTLY A'S … Baldwin (BC) and Paws (NEU): The newly outed pair thrives on the public's attention, posting their love for all to see. You may be characterized as an extrovert, yet some may think you are a little too self-centered. But hey! That's just self love.

MOSTLY B'S … Baldwin (BC) and Rhett (BU): An aggressive and fiery relationship forged through their forbidden love as sworn enemies. You may be characterized as crazy hot, but with a heavy emphasis on crazy, and a little on the wild side. Show off your inner animal!

MOSTLY C'S … Paws (NEU) and Rhett (BU): An unexpected pairing, but boy do they get freaky behind closed doors. You may be characterized as the innocent, quiet type to others, but those who know you know how kinky you are. Invest in some handcuffs and blindfolds ;)

MOSTLY D'S … Jumbo the Elephant (Tufts) and Tim the Beaver (MIT): Now what the fuck. Who even are you? Was D even an option?

Like what you see? (We know you do...)
