Girl Power: BC Students For Life Bake Cupcakes To Celebrate Loss Of Their Own Rights

McELROY COMMONS — In a total girlboss move not unprecedented by their long, well-established history as Boston College's premier loser collective, Students For Life baked dozens of cupcakes to celebrate the disenfranchisement of women across the United States. For years, the group has been advocating for the overturning of Supreme Court decision Roe v. Wade, and they couldn't help but feel glee when they found out that women everywhere will now become mothers against their will.

For the past five years, the club has been holding their 'Cupcakes For Life' event, where they practice good housewifery by making horrifying little cupcakes replete with quotes from the 'preborn', such as 'I deserved a birthday too' and 'I could have contributed labor to the free market'. Now the cupcakes feature different, victorious sayings like 'No, don't increase welfare benefits, I want to work!' and "Woohoo! My parents resent my birth!"

When asked what she thought about the dissolution of abortion rights disproportionately affecting women who can't afford medical care, childraising expenses, or maternity leave militant club president Pippa Crit (CSON '22) told The Classic, "Who cares! My self-serving agenda has finally been fulfilled, and rich people will still be able to get them no matter what! Feminism win!" She also told us that she has 'the cutest' infographic in the works that will 'totally own the libs'.

Other members of the club reported that, "Amy Coney Barrett totally serves Cunt-stituition" and, "we love our politically neutral feudal lords serving on the Highest Court in the Land." They saw no issue with corpses being awarded more bodily autonomy than women who are forbidden access to abortion.

Crit finished the interview by saying, "I think we can all agree that being pro-women means not letting them make any big, scary choices that men or better, more womanly women might disagree with. In fact, being pro-women means that my faith carries more legal weight than anyone's human rights."

When polled on other political issues, Students For Life unanimously supported the death penalty, the Iraq War, trickle down economics, abolishing birth control, nonsecular government, gutting welfare programs, conversion therapy, ICE, seven-day work week, decreasing access to public transportation, more fossil fuels, Westboro Baptist Church, abstinence only education, and getting rid of maternity leave.

Say Hello To The New LGBTQ+ Resource Center: Mudstock Pit is Here to Stay

MOD LOT — Mudstock is known and enjoyed by countless BC students as a rare example of a successful CAB event. As such, there's always that pang of sadness when the time comes to disassemble the gigantic pit of mud that we all grow to know and love. Thanks to the tireless work of our administration, you can kiss that sadness goodbye! The Mudstock pit is here to stay and will be put to good use as the campus resource center for LGBTQ+ individuals.

This feat in efficiency, inclusivity, and creativity was brought to BC by none other than Pastor R. E. Pent, the designated LGBTQ+ representative of the administrative team. As an avid worshiper of Jesus and academic watcher of "boys kissing each other butt And penis Youtube," Pent was the perfect candidate to integrate traditional Jesuit values with LGBTQ+ "acceptance."

The Classic was lucky enough to sit down with Pent and have him talk us through his decision. "Well, we've been looking for a location for the new 'resource center' for quite a while, and when I saw that gigantic pit of dirt, sweat, and mud, my mind immediately jumped to the gays. It's already built, so we don't need to put in any extra money, and it's in the middle of the parking lot, so maybe some of those dirty homos will get run over, which makes our job even easier."

We were also curious about exactly how the resource center would operate, and what resources would be offered. Once again, Pent had all the answers. "We're just gonna throw 'em in there. Get 'em nice and muddy. That oughta do the trick. Muck the gay right outta them. Diggin' in the dirt's about as close as you can get to hell in this life, so it'll be a good preview. If that doesn't fix them I don't know what will."

Pent interviewed one young woman at gunpoint, who happily reported, "As a queer person myself, I can't wait for neverending Mudstock! And R. E. Pent seems to have a great handle on the situation and knows exactly what an LGBTQ+ resource center is supposed to do!"

At press time, Pent was found in his office, continuing his research on his constituents by taking the "What Percentage Gay are You?" personality quiz on Buzzfeed.

UHS Worker Fired Amid Allegations Of Actually Assisting Patient

UNIVERSITY HEALTH SERVICES — Controversy took Boston College's Lower campus by storm Monday evening as security officials were seen escorting a nurse out of the University Health Services (UHS) building. Reports later clarified that the nurse had been accused of attempting to treat a student for their sickness, and was immediately fired and removed from the premises for the infraction against UHS policy.

The Classic reached out to multiple sources around the event for comment. First, we spoke to Nottareel Dachtur, head of UHS, and he had this to say: "We take our commitment to providing absolutely zero assistance or compassion to this university's student body very seriously, and when something like this happens, it can reflect poorly on all of us and our tireless efforts to prevent students from getting the care they need."

Dachtur also outlined the standard procedure: to administer a COVID test, tell the student to stop being a pussy, and send them home. He then clarified that the alleged breach of protocol had been cited as "speaking to the patient in a non-passive-aggressive manner."

We also spoke to the patient in question, Dizz Yeesed (MCAS '23), who was seen crawling along the floor of the UHS building begging for a glass of water as security dealt with the nurse. He said, "Please, somebody just help me. The nurse said I need antibiotics but now that she's gone the doctors just keep giving me COVID tests and asking me what I think they're supposed to be able to do for me."

Mr. Yeesed was pronounced dead later that day due to an easily-treatable papercut infection. UHS workers were spotted through the windows having what looked to be a pizza party touting a sign that read "ONE MORE DOWN", but declined to comment further on the matter.

advice from your imaginary friend

Q: Dear Chauncey,
If God can do anything, could he create a rock so heavy that he couldn't lift it?
Warm Regards,
Your Father
A: Dear Dad,
Thanks for writing! It seems like you have yourself a good-ol-fashioned 'Catch-22' here. I bet reading that book will help. Tell Mom I say hello!

Q: Dear Chauncey,
I got a guy here saying he's got the original everlasting gobstopper here used in the film, "Willy Wonka & the Chocolate Factory" (1971) starring Gene Wilder. Do you think you could stop by the shop and check it out to see if it's the real deal?
Thanks,
Rick Harrison
A: Dear Rick,
You definitely did the right thing by reaching out. Items like these are often counterfeit, but if we're dealing with an authentic piece, you could be sitting on a gold mine.

Q: Dear Chauncey,
I can't stop pooping my pants! Ahhhh!!!
Cheers,
A Baby
A: Dear Baby,
Stop worrying about what others think and focus more on what makes you happy.

horoscopes

ARIES: Release your inhibitions. Oh wait, actually, nevermind. You're being a little too much right now. People like you better inhibited.Something big is coming your way. and it's getting closer…and closer….and closer….holy shit are you even listening to me?!! RUN

TAURUS: Embrace tradition, reject modernity. Don't get that tetanus shot you are overdue for because it expires every 10 years and you last got your booster at your yearly physical after your 11th birthday. Modern medicine is a sham.

GEMINI: AyOoOoO air sign alert! Except the air is polluted with greenhouse gasses that are rapidly heating the earth and depleting our ozone layer. Lucky Number: 50. Coppertone Sport Mode 50 SPF Lotion to be more specific, which offers broad spectrum UVA/UVB protection that feels lightweight and moisturizes all day and follows Coppertone's 75 year tradition of providing trusted, quality sun protection products for the whole family.

CANCER: Your feelings are like a wax model of a celebrity. Don't know what the fuck this means? Idiot.

LEO: Try to avoid falling back into old habits today. The Delena Youtube compilations can wait.

VIRGO: You're putting out a very powerful energy today. Like, a very raw, powerful energy…..honestly I've kind of been highkey vibing with it. Did you change your bath soap or something? Lucky Number? Mine. Call me ;)

LIBRA: Treat yourself to something big today! Perhaps the lobotomy you've been saving up for!

SCORPIO: He's not ignoring you. You just make him nervous and he's afraid of his deep, passionate feelings for you. You should definitely text him again.

SAGITTARIUS: Why are you even reading this? Deuteronomy 18:10-14 literally expressly forbids horoscopes as a form of divination. Lucky number: Ummm…666? You're going to HELL??

CAPRICORN: Love should be shown without pretending. Hate evil, and hold on to what is good (If this seems like good advice it's because this is actually a Bible quote. Once again, you should be turning to Scripture for guidance).

AQUARIUS: Things are going to happen this summer! Like, so many things. Things you like and things you don't like. This may seem vague but bet your bottom dollar this is very, very specific to you and only YOU

PISCES: Your Venus is in Aquarius today which means your intelligence may feel closed off to you. You should email your professors and tell them this - they will be very understanding of this excuse.

To the fellow in Eagles Nest training a Broad-Winged hawk and wearing a giant blue tophat, you charmed me away. I was the one wearing the full corduroy suit and staring at you, without pause. Let me treat you and your BWH to lunch.

To the cute, brunette girl going into anaphylactic shock outside of 2150. I saw the paramedics transferring you onto the stretcher and I could not help but notice your understated beauty. Hope you're alright ;) Coffee sometime?

To the person who walked into Stokes North or South (I don't know which) and had hair that was either blonde or black as well as either curly or straight (my friend and I kept arguing) and was eating some sort of finger food (it was either a basket of chicken tenders or a hot dog but I couldn't quite tell) and I think had a tattoo (?) but also maybe you didn't (but if you did it was either a sunflower or a great white shark), I think you are cute!

Statue of St. Ignatius to be Removed After Controversial Burner Scrolls Unearthed

HIGGINS LAWN — In the wake of a shocking exposé released by Deadspin last week, BC officials have announced their intention to begin the process of removing the St. Ignatius statue which has for years been a focal point of the school's campus. The hit piece, which Ignatius's lawyers have claimed was orchestrated by a rival saint, included hundreds of incriminating quotes from at least 22 separate burner scrolls.

Perhaps most shocking was the vulgar nature of many of the scrolls – the word "bussy" appeared a staggering 458 times, and the term "Jesutitty" another 305. It's safe to say students across Boston College's campus were shocked to learn of this news.

"I mean I've definitely said bussy, but 458 times?" remarked Cam Selhiem (CSOM '22), "And to hide behind burner scrolls, it's just classless. Absolutely classless."

Despite hiding behind the alias "JesusRox1491", a close analysis of the handwriting made the scrolls unquestionably identifiable as Ignatius's.

"It's a sad day for this school," remarked Father Leahy, "I can't believe all this cancel culture bullshit. I mean listen, we've all said bussy, okay?"
